YOU-KNOW-WHO IS WHO-KNOWS-WHERE?

By Ellie-may, Phoenix Reporter for The Daily Prophet.

On the 31st of October 1981, You-Know-Who finally disappeared. Shockingly, he was defeated by the Potter's son Harry who was just a young boy. Two days ago, on Halloween, You-Know-Who went to the Potter's house in Godrics Hollow. Lily and James Potter were killed and their lucky son Harry survived. It is unknown why they were killed.

Yesterday, after finding out You-Know-Who's powers had gone, people had been celebrating in the streets. In the streets, massive groups of witches and wizards in colorful cloaks gathered. Strangely, people hugged muggles which is very different. "Rejoice for You-Know-Who has gone at last! Everybody should be celebrating this happy, happy day," a pleasant witch told our reporter.

Humorously, our celebrations made the muggle news yesterday. All day, muggles were confused about all the owl's behavior however they were just carrying out our messages. At night, they were confused about the shooting stars although it was just the sparks from our wands. While we were speaking to a muggle expert, Mr. Welsh, he told us "We need to be careful so the muggles don't find out about the witches and wizards."

Thankfully, we can look forward to years of peace because You-Know-Who is gone. The young Harry Potter has made this glorious thing happen. Books will be written about him and he will be famous because of this moment." I am heartbroken that Lily and James Potter died but thankful Harry Potter survived. "Professor Dumbledore told our reporter.
