

The daily prophet

Wizard gone wrong

By liam

On 31st October 1981, You-Know-Who was defeated by a baby, Harry Potter. Two days ago, the dark lord pampered at the potter's house and killed Lily and James. Sadly, they were killed whilst the young Harry Potter still lay alive. Unsurprisingly, it is hard to find out how the baby Potter survived. Happily, we know that the dark lord's wicked reign is over.

Yesterday, after we found out that the dark lord had lost his powers we took to the streets. In the streets, large groups of wizards celebrated in colorful cloaks. Surprisingly, Wizards even hugged muggles. "Rejoice for You-Know-Who has gone at last! Everyone should be celebrating this very happy day," a very happy wizard told u while chatting.

Humorously, the muggles were so confused that they put it on their news. Continuously, through out the day the muggles reported our owls sending messages. Through the night we shot sparks high up in the sky and the muggles thought they were shooting stars. While speaking to a muggle expert he said, "we should be more careful so they don't catch up to our secrets and cause trouble."

Thankfully, the dark lord is gone. Happily, we can look forward to peace and rest. We owe a special thank you to the young Harry Potter who has been awarded the nickname the boy who lived. In many years, we will write books about our saviour. A quote from Professor Dumbledore, "I am so so sad that Lily and James have died but I'm very grateful towards Harry and how he has survived," he told us while crossing his arms.